YAMAHA YDRA/E AND YDR2A/E MODEL GOLF CAR

ACCELERATOR RETURN SPRING FAILURE

WHAT IS THE DEFECT?

In affected cars, the accelerator pedal return spring may have been damaged at the factory while the hoc being bent, resulting in residual stress which may cause the spring to break. If the spring breaks, the acce pedal would not return to the home position when released.

WHAT ARE THE HAZARDS?

The car might not slow down without use of the brakes.

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

Your Yamaha dealer will replace the accelerator pedal return spring with a new stronger type of spring, free of charge. This procedure takes about 12 minutes per car, but your dealer may need to have your car(s) longer than this, depending upon scheduling.

WHAT TO DO?

Yamaha recommends that you do not drive your affected golf car listed above until this modification is performed.
